Supporting IDF Soldiers Grappling With PTSD

The aftermath of October 7 has left deep and lasting scars across Israel, particularly among the brave soldiers of the IDF who faced unimaginable horror in the line of duty. Many continue to battle severe post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), struggling with sleepless nights, flashbacks, and the invisible wounds that linger long after the physical battles have ended.

These heroes, who stood on the front lines to defend the Jewish people, now face an internal war that demands compassion, professional care, and consistent emotional support. The number of soldiers requiring psychological intervention has surged dramatically since the attacks, overwhelming the current mental health infrastructure and creating an urgent need for expanded resources, trauma counseling, and rehabilitation programs.

How Our Funds Are Used

Funds raised through the Genesis Friends for Life Global Foundation's third annual gala, A New Day Will Rise, will directly support these vital efforts. Donations will help provide comprehensive mental health services for soldiers grappling with PTSD, as well as emotional and financial support for the orphans and widows whose lives were forever changed that day.

Through therapy programs, family counseling, and community-based healing initiatives, Genesis aims to help restore stability, hope, and dignity to those enduring the long road to recovery. Each contribution is more than charity - it's an act of solidarity and renewal, ensuring that the defenders of Israel and their families are not left to face their pain alone. Together, we can help them heal and truly see a new day rise from the shadows of October 7.
